

FROM RICHES TO WAGS

You need £50k to snare a footie star

GIRLS who are looking to score with a Premiership footballer had better start saving now.

Because they'll need £50,670 in the bank to become a true WAG.

According to a new survey, that's how much it costs to join Posh, Alex Curran or Coleen McLoughlin.

But experts say the investment could pay off, because once you have bagged your man your spending power rockets.

■ by GARY NICKS

Coleen, 20, fiancée of Manchester United striker Wayne Rooney, 21, is constantly seen in the top shops.

Victoria Beckham, 32, wife of Real Madrid ace David, 31, is hardly short of a few quid.

And Alex Curran, 23 – fiancée of Liverpool's Steven Gerrard, 26 – is famed for her dazzling designer outfits.

Virgin Money researchers say going for their lifestyle will initially cost £28,815.

Wannabe WAGs will need to splash out a further £21,855 to stop their guy playing away.

But for girls willing to set their sights a little lower, a Championship player's heart can be won over for £23,400.

And for a bargain £500, girls can bag a Conference star:

Below, we show how the bill adds up. And if you want more tips, see Virgin Money's special WAG website, www.score-afootballe.co.uk

KILLER FARMER FED WIFE TO THE PIGS

WIFE TINA:
Her body has never

■ by IAIN BURCHELL
AN ex-SAS soldier who murdered his estranged wife is feared to have fed her body to his pigs.

Engineer Martin "Jed" Baker, 54, killed Tina Baker after she left him for an old school friend.

He was so careful to cover his tracks detectives have never found the 41-year-old's body, car or mobile phone.

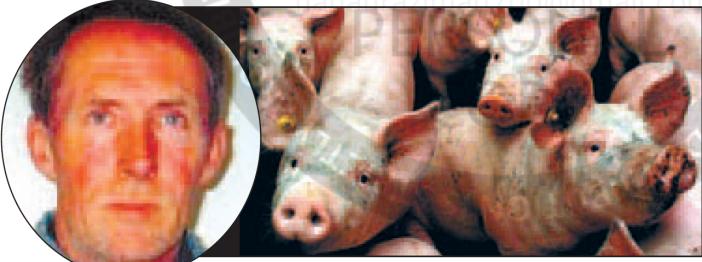

Police say he could have disposed of the body anywhere on his 14-acre farm in Chobham, Surrey, or in nearby lakes.

Divorce

But Baker's ex-wife offered police another gruesome theory about what happened to Tina.

Gillian Hopkins said he threatened to make her "disappear" by feeding her to the pigs - just like in Hollywood chiller Hannibal.

Baker sold off the swine and his other animals shortly after Tina vanished without trace in

MURDERING SWINE: Baker, left, used pigs to dispose of body

July 2002. He faces a life sentence after being convicted of murder by an Old Bailey jury.

The trial heard dad-of-three Baker, who served in the reserve regiment of the SAS, feared he would lose his farm in a divorce.

Tina refused to sign over the smallholding just before her disappearance and still fed the animals there.

Prosecutor Mark Dennis QC told the jury: "He was known to be a possessive person, someone always wanting to be in control.

"He was not a person who would take such a rejection lying down."

Baker, of Egham, Surrey, killed his wife on July 8, 2002, after she had spent the weekend at her new partner Derek Poplett's home. Tina failed to meet Mr Poplett as arranged later that day. She left behind her clothes and beloved Alsatian dog.

Baker insisted he had been at work at a precision engineering firm all day.

Dispose

But phone records showed he contacted a friend who ran a breaker's yard which could dispose of cars.

Baker said Tina - whose bank account was untouched - had simply disappeared. He kept up the act by asking her parents and pals for sightings.

But her family did not report her missing as she had gone AWOL before. Baker himself went to police two weeks later.

He was charged last year when detectives felt enough time had passed to prove his wife was dead.

Jurors were not told that during the inquiry Baker was arrested for using his home as a cannabis factory and was jailed for four years in June. He will be sentenced later this month.

MICHELLE'S SON RYAN RULES OK!

CORONATION ST.

EXCLUSIVE ■ by JOHN MAHONEY A GRAFFITI pest is set to give Corrie a splattering – and today we unmask the culprit.

It's bad lad Ryan Connor who runs amok with the spray-paint, to the fury of Weatherfield's residents.

And they'll be even more upset to learn that Ryan, played by 16-year-old Ben Thompson, is to become a regular fixture.

Ryan arrives in the ITV soap as the son of single mum Michelle, played by former Hear 'Say' singer Kym Ryder, 30.

And he soon shows his artistic side, plastering walls with cartoons of Corrie locals – including newsagent Norris Cole (Malcolm Hebden, 66).

But when Ryan's mum discovers spray cans hidden in his bag, she marches him round to Norris to apologise.

Actor Ben said: "Ryan is going to be a right cheeky chappie who'll get up people's noses."

"His mum will have a lot to put up with."

WEIGHTY ISSUE: TV Jamie

Shows 'don't swear it well'

■ by LAURA NEIL
TELLY shows in which celebrity bosses humiliate junior staff encourage school bullying, it was claimed last night.

Teachers' leader Chris Keates said programmes which show stars "shouting and swearing" at others legitimise bullying.

Ms Keates, NASUWT general secretary, said the spate of TV shows about obese toddlers and teenagers also handed yobs ammunition for taunting children with weight problems.

Blamed

Speaking at the union's conference on bullying in London, Ms Keates said: "How do you discourage bullying and demonstrate it is wrong when youngsters see celebrity status and money can be acquired on the basis of shouting and swearing at and humiliating others?"

Ms Keates also blamed media coverage of national campaigns to improve school dinners – prompted by celebrity chef Jamie Oliver, 31 – for spawning TV programmes which focus on overweight kids. She claimed that in many cases these programmes over-simplified the causes of the problem as "irresponsible parenting, poor diet, lack of exercise and lack of self-control".

BRITISH youngsters are working hard not to turn out like idle telly teen Kevin.

The lazy, sullen youngster played by comic Harry Enfield, 45, doesn't actually exist in real life, according to new research.

Graft

Experts found that most youngsters DON'T spend their time glued to the sofa watching telly or loafing in bed.

Today's teenagers are trying to juggle learning and work. More than four in 10 take on a job while in education, earning an average of £65 a week, says the Learning and Skills Council (LSC).

And they put in an estimated 14 hours of work outside college or school.

Eight out of 10 graft because they need the cash. More than a third work to boost their CV and nearly half of 16 to 18-year-olds are trying to gain experience.

Trevor Fellowes of the LSC said: "Work experience is an important part of learning for young people, and having a part-time

WHOOPS:
Jade is laughing as she takes another tumble but a fall on the slopes could break a leg – and the bank!

How ski holes

can go downhill

THOUSANDS of winter sports fans will be heading to the mountains soon and it's vital they have the right insurance cover.

Snow sports are getting ever more popular, with new equipment like monoboard, ski-trikes and inflatables.

TV celeb Jade Goody, who had a few tumbles on the slopes in the French Alps last March, can see the sense of insurance but a quarter of snow fans simply don't have winter sports cover and only half are sure they are insured against injuries or accidents.

Research by moneysupermarket.com found one in 12 holidaymakers don't buy travel insurance and more than one in five couldn't remember if they'd taken out a policy.

But ski slopes can be dangerous – they are one of the top five places in the world where injuries are most likely to happen. And little or no cover could leave you with a dent in your pocket.

Qualified

Prudential Travel Insurance warn that repatriation by air ambulance costs between £11,000 and £12,000, a broken leg can mean a bill for £5,000 and medical treatment for a torn knee ligament will set you back an average £3,000. Phil Southgate of the Pru said: "You must be realistic about what activities you plan to do. And don't forget that if you ski off-piste you may not be insured if you don't have a qualified instructor with you."

Also remember that if you have an accident while under the influence of drink or drugs your policy may be invalid.

Peter Gerrard of moneysupermarket.com said: "Winter sports insurance has become more refined as skiers become more adventurous but it's best to check what you are covered for."

"Many no-frills policies won't cover you for these activities as standard."

Act fast and fix up a deal

HOME owners with a standard variable interest mortgage will have to pay an extra £43million a month after last week's base rate hike.

With the rate now at its highest for five years at 5% the 0.25% increase will add almost £16 a month to a £110,000 straight repayment mortgage.

Sean Gardiner of moneypexpert.com said: "This is a bitter blow for home owners in the run-up to Christmas. And it looks like the next move could be up again."

Now experts are urging the

■ by MICHELLE CARTER

eight million home owners who still pay their lenders' SVR (standard variable rate) to find a better deal.

Average SVRs are 6.75% which works out at around £100 over the odds compared to a lifetime tracker with an interest rate of 4.92%.

Ray Boulger, of mortgage broker John Charcol, said: "Home owners on a standard variable rate will be hit particularly hard, yet they have the best opportunity to do something to do about it."

Majority

The vast majority of lenders will pass on the base rate rise in full and some will not doubt increase their SVR by more."

But with mortgage lenders cannily withdrawing their best fixed-rate deals before the rate rise, home owners with an SVR mortgage must do something now before the next rise.

"Although the best fixed-rate deals have gone there are still some great mortgages available and there will always be deals out there that are significantly cheaper," said Boulger.

"It's vital home owners ensure they have the best rate possible, especially if they don't have a fixed-rate deal so that if their mortgage goes up again they will still be able to make ends meet."

And if you already have a fixed-rate deal that's coming to an end your repayments will soar if you don't have a new deal set up to replace it.

Average fixed-rate mortgages in 2003 were just 4.22% but under the new rate monthly repayments could jump £180 or more a month – that's more than £2,000 a year extra.

If you are looking for a better rate your first port of call should be to your lender to see if they can switch you to a more competitive rate.

If they can't, check what penalties – if any – you will incur for moving, then shop around.

PAY OFF EARLY

Wouldn't it be great to see your mortgage shrink before your very eyes - until one day it disappeared altogether? Well now you can make it happen.

Different approach

The One account offers a different approach to your finances that allows you to shrink both your mortgage and your monthly repayment. It does this by combining your mortgage and your current account, so that every penny of your money works towards reducing the size of your home loan.

When you pay your monthly salary and any savings into the account, your mortgage debt immediately shrinks and so does the interest you repay each month. This has exactly the same effect as overpaying your mortgage, except you don't have to pay any extra. You could even see your mortgage shrink in size from one month to the next.

You are also free to overpay whenever you have cash to spare, and if you have any savings you can pay those in as well to help shrink your mortgage even faster. One day you might find your mortgage has shrunk so much it completely disappears, years ahead of schedule. Just imagine life with an ever shrinking mortgage. All that extra cash to spend on enjoying yourself, or to save for your future.

Amazing mortgage shrinker

SOUND too good to be true? Well it isn't. You can make your home loan shrink with an all-in-one mortgage from the One account. Just go to www.oneaccount.com and click on the amazing mortgage shrinker and follow the simple instructions.

Tap in your property value, the size of your mortgage and a few details like your salary and spending. Then click "Go ahead - shrink it!" and prepare for some good news. One day, you will eventually pay off your mortgage. With the One account's mortgage shrinker, that one day could be much sooner than you think.

Shrinking mortgage helps couple go places

THE ONE ACCOUNT CHANGED OUR LIVES

The One account's amazing flexibility helped Graeme and Moya Morison pay off their entire £84,000 mortgage in less than four years. Now they are celebrating by starting a thrilling new life in the South of France.

Graeme and Moya, from Pitlochry, Scotland, switched their mortgage on their 4 bedroomed cottage to the One account in April 2003. "Our previous, old-style mortgage never seemed to get any smaller, but that quickly changed when we moved to the One account."

The One account puts you in charge of your money because it is a bank account and a mortgage rolled into one. That means your current account and savings accounts all work together, making your money go much further.

Graeme, a charity director, and Moya, a university professor, started paying their salaries into the account. This immediately reduced their outstanding balance and cut the amount of interest they paid each month.

The more cash they paid in, the faster their mortgage shrank. "We had two endowment policies, and when they matured we paid the proceeds into the One account. Then we paid in cash from a savings account, reducing our mortgage even further," Graeme says.

Transferring your savings to the One account gives you a much better return, because instead of earning interest at a savings rate you save interest at the One account's mortgage rate. And because you are saving interest rather than earning it, you don't have to pay any tax either.

Better still, you are free to dip into those savings at any time, and without any penalty, for whatever reason.

The One account offers you complete flexibility, allowing you to make overpayments whenever you wish, and borrow back that money whenever you like, for whatever reason. When Graeme and Moya decided to spend £15,000 on a caravan, they simply dipped into their account. Shortly after, they borrowed another £10,000 to buy a car. "Any extra money we borrow is secured against our property and needs to be repaid by the end of the term, but as long as we stay within our agreed limit, how we use our account is up to us," he says.

In July 2004 The One account helped them fund their first major life change which was to turn their cottage into a bed and breakfast. "We had plenty of guests in summer, but fewer in winter. When the money was coming in, we paid off our mortgage, but during quieter periods we simply paid less," Moya adds. Graeme also took the opportunity to change his job to become a tree surgeon, a liberating experience he'll never forget.

Graeme and Moya have now cleared their mortgage and are celebrating by taking an even bolder step. "We both turn 55 next year and are going to take early retirement and move to the south of France, near Toulouse. Property is cheaper down there, so we will bank the profit on the sale of our home, and use that to supplement our pension income."

This exciting life change wouldn't have been possible without the One account," Graeme says.

5 REASONS TO FIND OUT MORE -

1 You can pay more off your mortgage when you want to.

2 You can even take payment breaks and do something you've always dreamed of.

3 Interest will continue to accrue during any breaks and will need to be repaid by the end of the term.

4 You could also borrow extra money at the same rate as your mortgage. Any extra borrowing will be secured against your property.

5 The One account will sort everything out for you, even your direct debits and standing orders.

Switch over to cheaper energy bills

WITH average energy bills now topping £1,000 a year it's no wonder we are worrying about how we are going to keep warm this winter.

We are now paying almost 70% - over £400 - more for our energy than we did in 2004.

Since January this year, there have been 14 rises in the price of gas and electricity.

The cost of our energy should be getting cheaper because the price of wholesale gas has dropped by an incredible 95% since January.

Yet our gas bills rose by a horrible 43% to £642 a year and electricity rose to £388, a 29% hike.

Experts reckon it will be next summer before we see the benefit of cheaper bills. But you'd be mad to wait that long.

Shop around NOW and switch to the best deal for you.

Moving from market leader British Gas to the cheapest supplier in your area could save up to

■ by MICHELLE CARTER

£285 a year and, if you've never switched, you could save £325.

Anne Robinson, of comparison website uSwitch.com, said: "We have seen the average fuel bill break the £1,000 barrier mainly because of the inflated cost of buying wholesale gas.

"But, as all providers pump the same gas through the same pipes, it doesn't explain why some are always considerably more expensive than others."

Capped

Switching is easy and, even if you're on a fixed or capped deal, you're not tied in and can change at any time.

First, though, check whether you'll save money if you go online.

According to comparison site moneysupermarket.com, someone on a standard British Gas tariff for both gas and electricity will pay an average £1,055.77 a year but their online deal could save on average £199.85.

Powergen's standard bill for both gas and electricity is, on average, £103 cheaper online, and npower's online deal is £108 cheaper.

You have to pay by direct debit to qualify.

If you don't want to go online you can still save by switching from a standard tariff to a dual fuel deal from another power company.

Switch from the standard British Gas tariff of £1,055.77 to Scottish and Southern Energy's dual fuel deal and you could save over £144 a year.

Paul Schofield, of moneysupermarket.com said: "We have been lulled into a false sense of security with the talk of wholesale gas prices falling and we're feeling the burden of summer's price hikes.

"When compared with standard tariffs we found that online deals look particularly competitive and the potential to save almost £200 shouldn't be overlooked."

What's new?

■ QUICK to respond to the Bank of England's base rate rise last week new savings firm Icesave has already increased the interest on their easy access online saver by the full 0.25% to 5.45%. For more details visit www.icesave.com

■ WITH interest rates on the up Leeds Building Society has launched a mortgage at 4.99% which lasts for 10 years. You need a 5% deposit, you can repay up to 10% each year in a lump sum without being penalised and there is no higher lending charge, but there is a completion fee of £749. For more details visit www.leedsbuilding.society.co.uk or phone 08450 540 994.

■ BETWEEN us we owe £1.3trillion and now a new helpline has been launched to help us get to grips with our debt. The Regional Money Helpline offers initial advice and support free of charge but then will offer different options on how to cope with your debt depending on how much you owe. One option is their Personal Money Manager which costs £39.99. For more details visit www.trmh.org.uk or phone 0845 2 706050.

■ REGULAR saving with a set amount debited from your account every month is the easiest way to put money aside and now Britannia Building Society has launched a regular savings account with an interest rate of a whopping 7.5%. The account lasts for just one year and the minimum monthly deposit is £25. There are no complicated withdrawal penalties. For details visit www.britannia.co.uk or phone 0800 132 304.

■ IF your bank account is usually in the red you could take advantage of HSBC's Current Account Plus which pays 6% interest on in-credit balances for 12 months...but act now because the offer ends at the end of the month.

■ THESE days it's practically impossible to live your life without a bank account but if the current accounts offered by the main banks offer more than you need a basic bank account could be the answer. And now the FSA - Financial Services Authority - has produced a new factsheet to help. You can order your free copy at www.fsa.gov/consumer or by phoning 0845 606 1234.

■ ANOTHER factsheet that could help if you think you're entitled to some compensation because of a mis-sold investment, like an endowment, is from the Financial Services Compensation Scheme. For your free copy phone 0207 892 7300.

CHRISTMAS is just around the corner...and it doesn't come cheap.

Last year we each spent a whopping £600 on presents alone.

This year we are expected to splash out over £1.7billion just on decorations, cards, trees and wrapping paper - that's another £75 on our bills.

And that figure doesn't even include festive food, booze and party clothes.

Internet shoppers reckon they save by going online, even so last year we spent £5billion on the web in the lead-up to the big day.

All in all it puts a strain on our finances, especially since mortgages are on the up, energy prices are soaring and our debts are getting bigger by the second.

But with a bit of careful planning you could easily save a few hundred quid and take the strain off your bank balance.

There's only 40 days to go but you could save around £300 by sorting out your finances.

And even if you don't see the difference by December 25 the changes you've put in place mean that by next Christmas you could have saved almost £4,000.

Stuart Glendinning of comparison site moneysupermarket.com said: "A family with a typical financial portfolio could save £3,998 in a year simply by reviewing their existing finances - mortgage, credit card, personal loan, savings, home and car insurance - and searching for more competitive deals."

"The savings can be made without changing your lifestyle or spending any less money on necessities.

"All it costs is a little time to find the best deals for you and your family. And if you keep these changes up for a year the savings are enough to persuade even the most reluctant saver to make the effort."

MORTGAGE

Most of your financial savings will be made by finding the best mortgage deal, especially if you're still stuck on your lender's standard variable rate.

If you're one of the eight million that are, you will see an extra £15 or so added after last week's interest rate rise.

But swap from a Bank of Scotland 6.9% SVR to a two-year fix with an interest rate below 5% and you could save around £200 a month - or £2,400 a year.

PERSONAL LOANS

If you've got a bank loan with an interest rate of more than 6% or 7% you need to swap right now. There are a handful of lenders with loans at under 6%. That means if you swap a £7,000 loan over five years on an interest rate of 10.9% to the Moneyback Bank loan of 5.6% APR you could save £16.51 a month in interest or £198.12 a year.

■ by MICHELLE CARTER

PLASTIC

A £2,000 debt on a credit card at 16.9% will be costing you lots of money.

There are more than 50 cards offering 0% interest on balance transfers and despite having to pay moving fees you'll still be quids in.

The GE Money Transformation card has no interest for the first 12 months so swap your balance to that and you'll save £64 after the balance transfer fee has been deducted.

Once the 12 months are up you could swap again if you haven't paid off the balance.

You won't incur any fees unless there's another balance transfer fee to pay another year down the line.

You may be tempted to use a store card at this time of year but don't!

A store card with an interest rate of 29.9% APR and a £2,000 balance will set you back £481 in interest alone each year and that's a huge waste of money.

Cut your store card up and put the balance on a 0% credit card - you'll save £481.

SAVINGS

Make sure you check where you've got your nest egg.

If it's languishing in a poorly paying account you'll just be throwing interest down the drain.

If you swap savings of £10,000 from a 1.2% deal to an account paying more than 5% like the Birmingham Midshires Instant Easy Access Issue 6 account, which pays interest of 5.2% - you'll pocket £400 extra every year.

CAR INSURANCE

Obviously it depends on the car you drive and your no-claims history but the driver of a Land Rover Freelander could save over £160 a year just by swapping from and Endsleigh policy to Direct Line.

HOME INSURANCE

Depending on where you live you could save a similar amount by switching your home cover too.

ENERGY

You can easily slash your energy bill by switching to a cheaper firm. Up to 10 million of us are still paying too much for our gas and electricity because we haven't moved. There are savings of up to £285 if you swap from British Gas to the cheapest supplier.

CURRENT ACCOUNTS

Move away from massive overdraft charges to the Lloyds TSB Classic Current Account which charges 18% for your overdraft. With a £1,500 facility you'll save over £250 every year.

Reward offered for staying loyal

ONE way to add to your Christmas savings is by using loyalty cards which reward you for using them.

Boots Advantage card gives you 4p back on every £1 you spend and Nectar gives you 1p for every £1 spent in certain shops like Debenhams and Sainsbury's.

And you can get vouchers for your spending on credit cards from Tesco, John Lewis, M&S Money and Sainsbury's.

Morgan Stanley credit card holders can visit www.savvydeals.co.uk for details of special Christmas discounts.

Patrick Muir, of Morgan Stanley, said: "The festive season can hit pockets hard and there's nothing more irritating than feeling like money has been wasted."

"But there's a multitude of ways that shoppers can save money without having to skimp on the little things that make Christmas special."

ID GIRL SHOWS THE FORM TO TURN 007'S HEAD

Dani's got a licence to thrill...

STUNNING Danielle Lloyd looks Oh! Oh! heaven in this sin-sational James Bond-inspired lingerie.

The 22-year-old beauty and girlfriend of West Ham striker Teddy Sheringham, 40, couldn't wait to strip off for these sexy new shots.

Things are getting better and better for the brainy babe, despite the fact that she was stripped of her Miss Great Britain crown earlier this month.

Bosses at lingerie firm Valisere reckon Mensa member Danielle has the perfect credentials to promote their latest looks.

And who can argue? With an enviable 34C-25-35 figure she really is licensed to thrill in these styles – which are aptly named Secret Service, Licence To Kiss and Love Spy.

What's more the Liverpool lovely is shaping up to make a glamorous entrance to the Royal premiere of the latest Bond film Casino Royale tonight.

Gold

And Danielle is a girl on a mission of her own. She says: "I'm going to be the golden girl of the premiere.

"I'll be wearing a shimmering gold dress which is being made especially for me by top fashion house Lipsy.

"I can't wait to get on the red carpet and give the crowds a view to a thrill! And I would love to be a Bond Girl – especially a bad one. All those fabulous clothes they get to wear and all that on-screen action with Bond!

"I'm looking forward to seeing how the new Bond played by Daniel Craig will be.

"I have to say Sean Connery is my favourite James Bond – he played the role with such sex appeal and humour.

"But I'll let you into a secret: I call Teddy my Mr Bond because he has all those qualities and more."

Danielle has also just signed an exclusive deal with beauty brand Klimia to promote their luxury skin care range.

So look out Mr Bond – this girl's out to take over the world!

RAMSAY'S KITCHEN: C4, 9pm

WHAT'S HOT TO WATCH TODAY

■ GORDON Ramsay is f-f-flipping f-f-furious when he sees the state of Laurence Davey's diabolical restaurant in Nerja, on the Costa del Sol, in the first programme of a new series of RAMSAY'S KITCHEN NIGHTMARES (Channel 4, 9pm). Gobsmacked Gordon can hardly believe his eyes, or his tastebuds, which is hardly surprising. Eating insects in I'm A Celebrity must present much less of a challenge than eating here. So what is wrong with the place exactly? Well, if I tell you that the food is undercooked and probably life-threatening – and that there's dog muck on the restaurant floor – you'll soon get the picture. Needless to say, the exotic-sounding La Parra de Burriana isn't exactly awash with satisfied customers queueing up to hand over their Euros in exchange for top nosh. In fact, it's been losing money ever since Laurence set it up 18 months ago with a £40,000 loan from his poor old dad. This is a tough one even for rip-roaring Ramsay. But if anyone can turn this failing business around then surely it's him. By the way, it's probably best not to be eating your supper while this stomach-churner is on.

■ THEY SAY opposites attract – but not necessarily chalk and cheese couples taking part in DATING THE ENEMY (ITV1, 10pm). First up is Karolyne who hates Essex blokes with a passion. So guess what? Yes, you know where we're going, here. Gavin, a power plant supervisor, hopes to win her round. But will his chat-up lines lead him to the trainee barrister's briefs?

■ YOU'LL have much more sympathy with the couples appearing in the new series A CHILD AGAINST ALL ODDS (BBC1, 9pm). They are desperate to have babies but have failed to do so in the usual way. Professor Robert Winston – he of the specs and thick moustache – investigates the various alternative methods that could bring hope to the childless.

up or delinquent behaviour, if you're a psychologist.

Vaguely tempting as this idea was, it wasn't clear how it applied to families of four or five, where there wasn't an obvious middle. And rather than get into that awkward sort of territory, this simply ignored it.

It proved nothing, except that you could argue pretty much anything about anyone, if you chose to. And so, most blatantly, did the experiment, in which two 'experts' tried to guess who, from a large group of people, had been the middle children.

Their two-out-of-three success rate was described as 'an incredible result'. And it was, because everyone's grandma could have done just as well, or better.

Just Jane

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES
YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY
... AND EVERY DAY

He only wants affairs

MY on-off lover is such a commitment phobe he only dates married women.

When we first met, I was happily wed and had never cheated on my husband. But my lover wooed me relentlessly and we started a passionate affair.

While I was still married, everything was fine. But the minute my husband found out about our secret relationship and walked out, my lover turned cold.

He stopped taking my calls and started dating other married women. He clearly felt that I was after something.

My husband is home again and we're giving our marriage another chance. But I've already had my lover on the phone.

He says he can't live without me and needs to start seeing me again. This man is doing my head in.

JANE SAYS: This dangerous man will ruin you if you're not careful. You'll end up with no husband, no lover, no confidence and no future.

Can't you see that he likes playing games? He enjoys the thrill of the chase.

He likes seducing married women, because they're a challenge. But he's not prepared to offer a single ounce of commitment in return.

I urge you to stop answering the phone to him or tell him to get stuffed. Warn your husband that he's making a nuisance of himself.

Between you, you can warn him that you'll take things further if he continues to harass you. Let's see how bold he is then.

OBSESSED WITH HIS CHEATING EX

DESPITE being married to me for two years my husband is still totally obsessed with his first wife.

He ran off with his best pal and he's so consumed with bitterness for the pair of them.

He talks about them all the time. It's his only topic of conversation.

The other night we had a couple of new friends over for a meal.

The wife made the mistake of asking my husband about his past. He was very drunk and proceeded to rant about the shoddy way "they" treated him.

We had every little detail from the day he found a condom under the bed to the night he caught them having sex.

It was excruciating. Not once did he look over at me and realise that I was squirming with embarrassment.

It ended with him smashing his fist down on the table and screaming: "I was betrayed, I was betrayed."

He sent bottles and food flying in all directions and then fell on the sofa and sobbed. The poor couple fled in horror and, yet again, I was left to pick up the pieces.

My teenage children absolutely hate him.

They are insulted that he's married to me, yet still going on about "her". They can't work out why he can't put the past behind him and neither can I.

Occasionally his daughter from his first marriage will come and stay with us. All my husband does is quiz her about what her mother is doing, how her new stepdad is spending his money and what life is like at home.

The girl is very loyal and always sticks up for her mum, but my husband never misses an opportunity to slag her off.

The other night we were in bed and he actually started speculating on the quality of their sex life compared to ours.

He found it hysterically funny to imagine his ex-mate with erection problems. I don't know how much more I can take.

JANE SAYS: You sound like a living saint for putting up with this.

I can't imagine why you stay with this appalling man.

From what you say, he has absolutely nothing going for him.

JANE'S ADVICE LINES

Evil daughter's theft from gran

I JUST don't understand my own daughter. I can't believe that I actually gave birth to her. She's nothing like the rest of us.

She's 23 and spiteful, ruthless and dishonest. She's utterly selfish and only does things that will benefit her 100%.

The latest thing is that she's stolen £200 from my mother. Her granny was the one person in our family who I actually thought she liked.

I just feel like giving up on her.

JANE SAYS: You've got to come down on this girl like a ton of bricks and make it absolutely clear that this behaviour is not acceptable.

Stealing from her own grandmother is so low that it beggars belief.

Ask your daughter if she has anything to say in her defence and if she intends to change.

If she can't give you a straight answer, then maybe you'll have to decide that she is not someone you want to have in your life.

too busy
for me

I FEEL like I've been abandoned by my sister. This time last year we were so close. We spoke on the phone 10 times a day and saw each other every night.

But in a very short space of time her life has changed out of all recognition and there's no room for me.

Last Christmas she married a divorcee with three children. At first they lived with their mother. But she moved to Spain, so they moved in with my sister.

Laughs

Then she announced that she was pregnant. Her baby was born six weeks ago and I've hardly had a look-in since.

Every time I ring for a chat, she tells me that she's too busy. Whenever I suggest going for a coffee, she just laughs. I hate this.

JANE SAYS: You're being naive if you think your relationship with your sister can carry on as before.

Her life has moved on and yours must too.

I doubt she's got time to clean her teeth, let alone "go for a coffee".

Get real! Why don't you offer to cook a meal for you all? Or babysit or do a pile of ironing? Your sister needs practical help right now, not hours on the phone.

Then her youngest child eventually starts school, then you'll be able to have your chats and occasional shopping again. Until then, it's all hands on deck.
